

BRIAN LAYS DOWN THIRTY-THREE NEW BATTLESHIPS

Five Will Be of the King George V. (Dreadnought) Type of 25,000 Tons, While the Others Are Cruisers and Smaller Warships—Increased Speed

(Western Associated Press.)
London, Oct. 28.—Ships of Britain's Dreadnought fleet continue to grow as the fleet increases in number. The ships of the King George V. class, four in number, the first of which has just been launched, are of 25,000 tons, and this seems to be decided upon as the limit for the British fleet. At least, tenders have just been called for the construction in private yards of two of the vessels provided for in the current year's naval estimates, and it is said that they will resemble the vessels of the King George V. class.
The other two ships of this programme are to be built at Portsmouth and Devonport dockyards, and if any great advance is to be made it will be in these ships, over which the admiralty will have complete control from the time the keels are laid.
In all four ships there will be an advance in the torpedo line, guns and horse power will be increased in order that the speed of 25 knots may easily be maintained as the "Orion" did. The new ship to be built at Portsmouth will be a cruiser of the "Lion" type, so that Britain will have a fleet of four of 22-knot speed with practically the fighting power of a battleship. Without the vessels of the new programme, Great Britain has now completed, launched or is building thirty-two modern battleships and cruisers, graduating from the 17,000-ton Dreadnought to the 25,000.

CANADA REFUSED EXHIBIT SPACE

Will Not Be Allowed to Display Products at Minneapolis Land Show—Many Decide to Hold Separate Exhibition at St. Paul

(Western Associated Press.)
Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 28.—Refusing to allow Canada space in the Land Products show at the auditorium in December, that country, according to advices received at the offices of the Minnesota State Board of Agriculture today, is preparing to hold a separate show at St. Paul at the same time. J. Bruce Walker, immigration commissioner of Manitoba, Mr. Campbell and others, had entered into negotiations with the Minnesota board relative to renting the building for their show. Only the Northwestern Canadian provinces will show their products according to present information.

Speaking to the Capital this morning regarding the above dispatch, W. J. Webster, immigration minister, said that in former years Canada always has been allowed space in the auditorium at the Minnesota State Board of Agriculture. He expressed the opinion that any aversion on the part of the management of the exhibition to allow Canadian exhibits would be overcome.

MOVING WESTERN CEREAL CROP

The Western grain crop is rapidly moving to the head of the lakes at Port Arthur and Fort William and a large number of lake vessels are en route to the Great Lakes. The commission moving it further east, according to Superintendent W. A. Brown of the Canadian Northern railway who returned to Edmonton this morning after a trip to Winnipeg and the twin cities of Lake Superior. Mr. Brown spent two days in Port Arthur and Fort William, and speaking to a Capital representative this morning he said that the two lake ports are going ahead very rapidly.

"The facilities for handling western grain at Port Arthur, apparently are perfect," he said. "There are days when hundreds of cars of grain arrive there over the C.P.R. and C.N.R. lines from the west, and they are disposed of with no difficulty whatever. The bay is crowded with freighters every day but there is little or no congestion at the docks."

The 750 foot dry dock which was completed recently is a great asset to the town," he continued. "It is large enough to admit any of the vessels from the west, and they are disposed of with no difficulty whatever. The bay is crowded with freighters every day but there is little or no congestion at the docks."

Speaking of the reported shortage of cars for moving grain in Western Canada, Mr. Brown said that few complaints of shortage have been received in his division. "Not being in charge of the traffic department, however, I was not in a position to speak with authority as to the exact situation. Farmers all along the line to Winnipeg were engaged in threshing and marketing grain and on the whole Mr. Brown has no dissatisfaction with regard to the outcome of this year's farming operations."

NEW COMMISSIONER CANNOT BE NAMED

BOARD RECOMMENDED BY LAURIER GOVERNMENT IS FORMALLY APPROVED BY KING

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—King George, acting on the recommendation of Premier Asquith has formally refused the appointment of Sir G. G. Gibbons, and Miss Gordon, of Montreal, and Sir John, as the Canadian members for the International Waterways convention established under the treaty offered last year by the Imperial and American governments. The personnel of the Canadian section of the commission was sent to the Imperial conference on August 11 last by the Laurier government. A cable was received from the colonial office early in September, stating that the names submitted had been approved by His Majesty and Ambassador Bryce had been notified to that effect.

A preliminary meeting of the commissioners were held at Washington in September 18, and arrangements were made to take up the work before the commission.
As the appointment is an Imperial prerogative and has already been approved by the King on the advice of Premier Asquith, the statements that the new commissioners would be appointed by the new government are incorrect. They would not be authoritative. The Canadian commissioners will continue to act and as soon as President Taft appoints a successor to the late Sir John, the new commissioners will be appointed by the American commission, until his death a few weeks ago, the joint commission will meet and actively take up the many important questions now awaiting their consideration.

CHICAGO JUGGLERS FEARED THE PROBE

RUMOR THAT GOVERNMENT WILL INVESTIGATE WHEAT PIT DEALINGS IS DENIED

(Western Associated Press.)
Chicago, Ill., Oct. 28.—Following the excitement in the wheat market today, due to rumors that a federal investigation might be instituted into the grain market, rumors that such was contemplated were given out by United States District Attorney Jas. Wilkinson and Special Agent Charles De Warkoff of the department of agriculture. "Any man who trades in grain has a perfect right to accumulate just as much as he wants," said Mr. Wilkinson.

Testimony regarding the wheat market in Chicago and St. Louis, which was given yesterday, and which was stamped will be heard by the federal court. Judge Kilduff ruled yesterday that the grain market has jurisdiction in the suit filed by Wm. Lanyon of St. Louis, against the United States of America, and that the suit should be heard in St. Louis. The case will start next Monday.

TAFT DEDICATES U.S. NAVAL SCHOOL

NAVY INSTITUTION ON SHORES OF LAKE MICHIGAN ONE OF THE "FINEST IN THE WORLD"

(Special to the Capital.)

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 28.—America's newest and greatest naval training station, located on Lake Michigan, thirty miles north of Chicago, was formally dedicated by President Taft, this afternoon in the presence of a distinguished gathering of local and national officials. The President made the trip to the north shore after spending an exceedingly busy day in Chicago, in the course of which he had delivered two addresses, one before the American Mining Congress, and the other to the members of the Chicago Bar association.

Accompanying the President to the new station were Secretary of the Navy Meyer, Governor Denner, Congressman C. Ross and other notables, together with a contingent of prominent Chicagoans. Upon arrival the party was received by Head Admiral Albert S. Johnston, commandant of the station, who personally conducted the visitors over the 33,000-acre grounds, which includes 100 acres of water and 182 acres of ground. A presidential salute of twenty-one guns greeted the arrival of the President at the station. Following the programme of speeches the President reviewed the recruits.

In addresses to the city the President and other speakers had emphasis upon the importance and significance of the occasion and reviewed the history of the movement which had culminated in the completion and opening of the new station. The President, who personally conducted the visitors over the grounds, said that few complaints of shortage have been received in his division. "Not being in charge of the traffic department, however, I was not in a position to speak with authority as to the exact situation. Farmers all along the line to Winnipeg were engaged in threshing and marketing grain and on the whole Mr. Brown has no dissatisfaction with regard to the outcome of this year's farming operations."

KING'S VACATION COMES TO AN END

ROYAL FAMILY WILL BE KEPT VERY BUSY ENTERTAINING UNTIL AFTER DUSK

(London Associated Press.)
London, Eng., Oct. 28.—The king is again in London after the only vacation he has taken since his accession. The royal party came directly to London from Balmoral, where the last weeks of the vacation have been spent.

After a strenuous season which included the coronation and the long list of succeeding festivities, the king and queen left town at the end of July. Gieves work commenced the vacation and between rains the king and the prince of Wales, enjoyed bathing from a steam pleasure in Osborne bay, until the prince had to leave to join his ship, the Hibernia, on board which he started active service, as a midshipman.

With the breaking up of the royal party on board the Victoria and Albert, the king and queen returned to town for a day and after riding south by train to Epsom, the king and queen, accompanied by the prince of Wales, the duke of York and Lady Alice, to the shooting parties on the Balmoral estates.

The king's resumption of residence at Buckingham palace was marked by a reception to the envoys of the Pacific states, France, recently announced by General Pelletier said, Canada will certainly have a referendum on navy, and Britain will abide by the result.

American Gunboats and Monitors Will Patrol Rivers Where Larger Craft Cannot Enter, to Protect Foreigners

—Yuan to Be New Premier

(Western Associated Press.)
Washington, Oct. 28.—[Unable to do more than has been done towards maintaining a naval force in the upper reaches of the Chinese rivers, because of the lack of draft hull full boats, Admiral Alcock, commander in chief of the Asiatic station, has decided to strengthen the American naval representation at the Chinese coast, the coast defense ship "Monterey," and the smaller target ship "Manila," to be placed at once to the Chinese coast. These ships are to look out after the interests of Americans and foreigners.

Ambassador Bagen called today from Paris that the French government had decided that it did not see the necessity for joint action of the foreign naval forces in China. This, doubtless, was in reply to state department, which suggested that various American ambassadors and ministers, they learn the purpose of the governments to which they were accredited in dealing with the situation in China, and the French response is exactly in line with the views of the state department.

The state department was informed today through the Chinese section here, of the appointment of Yuan Shi Kai, to the supreme command of the military movement in China.

Yuan Shi Kai, whose legislation negotiations between the government and revolutionaries are about to begin, is believed here to have been awaiting such a concession on the part of the present government before consenting to take active part in the campaign.

The view is that Yuan, who is a reformer and popular with the masses, is unwilling to compromise with the revolutionaries and that he will be willing to make terms through a settlement on the guarantee of a constitutional government.

Ying Tching, the deposed commander in chief of the Imperial army, and his bitter personal enemy, Wang Shao, the newly appointed minister of continuation is one of his grave concerns here is that Yuan will be chosen premier.

Steel and Iron Plant Head of Lake Superior

Will Be Erected in the Near Future by James J. Hill—Steel Corporation Has Turned Back Mines Purchased from Great Northern Magnate

(Western Associated Press.)
Duluth, Minn., Oct. 28.—An intimate Duluth friend of Jas. J. Hill, says that he expects an early announcement that the Great Northern magnate is going to erect a large iron and steel plant at the head of Lake Superior. He lives as his reason that it was his purpose to establish such an industry soon after acquiring his iron mines and that it was to prevent him carrying the plants aloft affect that the steel corporation had announced a liberal contract to take over the Hill ore.

Since the signing of that contract, the steel corporation has begun the building of a large iron and steel industry but now that his mines are returned to him it is believed that Mr. Hill will renew his iron and steel enterprise for this place and that he will not fear successful competition by the steel corporation, especially in the west.

Mr. Hill at the time he was planning a large steel plant in 1905, contemplated the use of heat as fuel. He proposed to briquette the coal and many Minnesota men will recall that he had much to say at that time of the fall value of the post-beds in Northern Minnesota.

SAYS STATEMENT IS A FABRICATION

MAYOR HAS AUTHORIZED NO ONE TO STATE THAT HE WILL BE

The truth of the statement published in a local paper yesterday, to the effect that Mayor Armstrong has announced himself as a candidate for reelection, was categorically denied by his worship in conversation with the Capital this morning. Mayor Armstrong stated that the whole story was a fabrication. He introduced the subject of the amalgamation bill at the forthcoming session of the legislature, and the possibility that he will run for reelection, will not take place until the latter weeks of January. Any announcement of candidacy he recorded as at this time premature.

The action of the United States government to dissolve the steel trust brings up once again the great question of whether it is really in the public interests to break up the trusts.

Political economists who live in the world of theory can demonstrate beyond the shadow of a doubt that it is only through amalgamation and the specialization of industries that the consuming public has a chance to get the products of the factories at a reasonable price, and if this is true, then the oil refineries of the Standard and the steel mills of the Federal should be able to serve the public better than those of any independently-working and disconnected refineries and mills could possibly hope to do.

In corroboration of the theory that the trust is the best machine of production practical politicians point out that it is the success of the trust which rouses the enmity against it. If the independent operator had nothing to fear from the trust he would not agitate against it. But the experience is that the trust, rather than being at a disadvantage in competition with the smaller concern, which has the benefit of the closer personal attention of an individual owner, actually forces the smaller concerns out of business; that, in fact, this is the purpose of the trust.

Certainly, if the trust could not produce cheaper than the independent company, the trust would not survive and the immense amounts of water which are injected into such stocks as the Federal Steel could not be given a stock market value by the payment of dividends on paper which never represented the investment of real money in the capital of the company.

Again, there is the indisputable fact that the trust invariably pays better wages than the independent and smaller concerns. Throughout all the agitation against the Standard Oil the trust which is regarded as the fiercest ogre of them all, Rockefeller's great oil company has never had a strike, and it is characteristic of the Standard wherever it is operating that it invariably pays a shade better wages than any other industry employing similar labor in the same community.

The real basis of the agitation, therefore, is not that the trust cannot produce cheaper and not that it does not pay the workers better, but that it charges the public more.

Which comes back to the question of the tariff. The United States is the country in which the steel flourishes most luxuriantly. The steel trust is the trust which exemplifies best of all the growth of the system under which the trust is built. The United States levies a prohibitive duty on steel, behind which the steel trust charges the people of United States a price for steel products which bears no relation whatever to the cost, but which is based on a carefully estimated value of what the market will stand. The tariff keeps the price of the product of the steel trust higher than in other countries out of United States, and the trust, controlling all the mills within, sets its price, not so much on what it sells in United States. But at the same time, the trust sells steel in foreign lands in direct competition with the mills which the United States tariff is constructed to exclude from competing in United States, proving that the tariff is not a protection but a franchise which the steel trust holds to rob the people of United States.

It is this franchise which is represented by the water in the stock, and on this franchise the trust pays its dividends.

Were the United States government to lift the tariff barrier and allow the German and the British steel makers to compete in the United States market the steel trust, instead of selling abroad cheaper than at home, would have to sell at home cheaper than abroad; either that or lose the home market. And the six hundred millions of water which is represented by promoters' stock in the steel trust would cease to have a value, because the earnings of the steel trust would then be based on actual capital invested and not on a franchise to overcharge.

In taking action to dissolve the steel trust, therefore, the United States government is progressing backward. It is dissolving the amalgamation of capital, which should work out for cheaper production, and would do so if the tariff were removed.

It is protection, and not the amalgamation of capital which is costing the United States the ridiculously high price charged for trust products. United States can escape from its dilemma any day by knocking down the tariff wall. It can never escape by a court-made handicap placed upon the system of production.

Mr. Borden says he is going to submit the naval question to a referendum. Mark you, he says he is going to do so. But he is not.

Mr. Borden's proposition is to ask the people of Canada whether they are in favor of building a navy which will maintain as a Canadian navy; or, whether they are in favor of maintaining a unit of the British navy with Canadian money and calling it Canada's contribution to the defence of the empire; or, whether they are in favor of building a navy at all, or not.

If Borden were to submit a bill for the expenditure within the next ten years on a navy of, say, one hundred million dollars, and were to submit this bill to the electors in the shape that it would, if ratified by the electors, be finally adopted, that would be a referendum.

A precisely similar situation developed in the city of Edmonton not so long ago, when the city council submitted the gas question to a vote of the ratepayers. Where the city submits a money bylaw to the electors the endorsement or rejection of the money bylaw disposes of the question one way or the other, because the ratepayers vote on the actual bylaw. But the ratepayers of Edmonton voted in favor of municipal gas, and yet gave not the gas question their votes did not settle the question. It was not a referendum they voted upon, but a plebiscite.

Just so with Borden's proposition. Should the electors vote for the construction of a navy, there would be yet to come the action of the dominion house to make that vote effective. And the plebiscite not having set out definitely any amount of money to be expended or any particulars with regard to how that money should be expended, the interpretation of the meaning of the vote cast on the plebiscite would be entirely in the hands of the house of commons, or rather of the government which directs the house.

There is this much to be said for Borden's plebiscite, however, that it demonstrates very clearly that notwithstanding that he is leader of the dominant party and premier of the Dominion of Canada, Borden is so ignorant of even the terms of advanced legislation that he does not know what a referendum is.

From this, the electors can at least judge how much chance they have of getting from Borden anything in the shape of advanced legislation. To the farmers of the west, for instance, who are talking direct legislation, the referendum and recall, and all such things, this sidelight into Borden's comprehension will come as a veritable eye-opener. And the eye-opener certainly will not help Borden much in the estimation of the farmer.

"'Baschall and horses, baschall and horses,' sighed the Manicure Lady. 'Honest to goodness, George, I haven't heard so much of that kind of talk since I went into the business of doing your nails. It makes me stout and tired, too. What in the world do they suppose a girl cares about baschall and horses?'

"It's had enough that a lot of ex-book-makers sit around here signing and telling about the days of their former greatness. Some of them can't get anything regular to do, so they just hang around and mope and talk about the races up in Canada, and try to figure out some way to beat a race for "You gotta remember, kid," said the head barber, "that a lot of people is interested in baseball. I don't expect that girls would care much about it, because it requires a lot of quick and deep thinking, and that is something for which a girl was never noted."

"Of course, a lady philosopher would say that," admitted the Head Barber, "but you couldn't get a man to agree with her. What about the great things that have been done in this world? What about the pyramids? Who built them? Was it women?"

"It must have been," replied the Manicure lady. "The history books say that they were built by slaves."

"Well, what about the great soldiers of history?" the Head Barber wanted to know. "What about Napoleon and Julius Grant and Ulysses G. Lee and a

New Administration's Majority Is 37,893

As Compared with Laurier Government's Lead of 24,893 in 1903—Toronto Rolled up a Big Total for Borden —Ontario Controls the Dominion

(Western Associated Press)
Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Official returns received in Ottawa from all but twenty-five Dominion constituencies give the new Borden administration a popular majority of 37,893, as compared with 24,893 received by the Laurier government in 1908. About 25,000 of these came from the city of Toronto alone. The total vote as far as compiled is 569,570 Conservatives, to 531,896 Liberals.

It is probable that the popular majority as indicated above may be somewhat reduced because the missing constituencies include six in Alberta and three in Saskatchewan carried by the opposition by large majorities. Ontario, with five constituencies missing gave the Conservatives over 55,880 majority, almost half of which is credited to the city of Toronto, or nearly two-thirds of his entire popular majority throughout the Dominion.

There were four constituencies for which candidates were returned by acclamation, Quebec East, Westland, Two Mountains and Thunder Bay and Italy River. The last named returned a Conservative, the other three Liberals. No returns will be received from these constituencies. Of the twenty-five missing constituencies, ten returned Conservatives and fifteen Liberals.

The returns by provinces with missing constituencies indicated are as follows:

Photographers Face Manslaughter Charge

Men Who Owned Trunk Which Exploded at Lacombe, Killing Baggage Agent, Are to Stand Trial—Inquest on Case Finished—Great Interest in Case

Lacombe, Oct. 28.—The adjourned inquest into the death of Everett G. McLeod, who was killed in the explosion of a trunk which wrecked the C.P.R. depot here on the evening of October 12th, was held today. It was conducted by Dr. E. M. Sharpe, coroner. The verdict of the jury was as follows: "That Everett G. McLeod came to his death from injuries received in the explosion of a trunk in the baggage room of the C.P.R. depot at Lacombe on the evening of October 12, and from the evidence adduced the opinion of the jury is that the trunk, the explosion of which caused the death of Everett G. McLeod, was packed by Harry Leonard Smith and Henry Lelievre. As a result of the verdict the two men implicated are in custody of the R.N.W.M.P. and will be given a preliminary hearing on Tuesday next on the charge of manslaughter. Arthur E. Pope appeared at the inquest. The trunk which exploded and which was held in connection with the fatal explosion, and John W. Huggill of Calgary, was present as the representative of the Canadian Pacific Railway company, while A. B. Russell, of Red Deer, was crown prosecutor.

The two men, who will be charged with manslaughter are traveling photographers, who were employed by A. N. Avelandson, photographer of Calgary. They left Calgary on October 11th, having purchased tickets for Edmonton. They stopped first at Hudsonburg on their way north and also at Red Deer, having checked and rechecked the trunk at these places.

It was stated in evidence that explosives of any character are not permitted to be carried on passenger trains, and a recent decision of the board of railway commissioners of Canada was also referred to, namely, that materials used in flashlight photography and potassium chlorate are high and dangerous explosives, and may be shipped only in properly constructed receptacles and only by freight.

One of the witnesses was George Blackford, the second baggage agent, who was with McLeod when the trunk which caused the latter's death, was handled in the baggage room after being taken from the train on October 12, has been in the hospital under medical care since the accident until today.

Other Witnesses.
The other witnesses were: Harry McLeod, baggage agent; Harry L. Dodd, baggage agent; Dr. W. P. Hynes and Dr. W. J. Simpson; G. T. Jackson, station agent at Lacombe; Carl B. Egan, merchant of Lacombe, who was at the station at the time of the explosion; E. V. Dufferfield, district baggage agent of the C.P.R., Calgary, and P. Rubin.

DYNAMITE ON TRACK Persistent Efforts Are Being Made to Wreck Trains on the Southern Pacific Railway

(Western Associated Press.)
San Francisco, Oct. 28.—Southern Pacific railway officials here were notified today of the finding of thirty-six sticks of dynamite in a tree on the track in Elwood, California, a few moments after train No. 18, a southbound passenger, had passed the switch. Part of the dynamite was pulverized, evidently having been ground by the car wheels. The dynamite was found within a few miles of the house where a similar cache was placed when President Taft passed over that part of the road.

Rev. W. A. Lewis pastor of Newwood Methodist church, will conduct a memorial service in the Methodist church at Vermilion tomorrow.

JUST WANTS TO KNOW

Whether British Ambassador Will be Instructed Not to Frame Any More Reciprocity Treaties.

[Canadian Associated Press]—London, England, Oct. 28.—Rowland Hunt, M.P., will ask the Foreign Secretary in the House of Commons on Tuesday whether seeing that reciprocity has been definitely defeated and that Ambassador Bryce, assisted in making that treaty, will the foreign secretary will instruct Bryce not to render such assistance again.

LANG DEFEATED.

[Western Associated Press.]—Savoy, N. S. W., Oct. 26.—Sam MacVey, the American pugilist, knocked out "Bill Lang" of Victoria, in the second round here today. Lang's attack and defense were poor and early in the second round he was floored twice. He came back after six seconds, the first time and then took the count of eight. He finally succumbed to a punch to the jaw. The Californian was a 5 to 2 favorite. Six thousand persons witnessed the fight.

PAYING TAXES AT RECORD RATE

RATEPAYERS OF STRATHCONA WILL SEE TO IT THAT LITTLE PROPERTY IS SOLD.

Strathcona, Oct. 28.—The auction sale of lands recently advertised for arrears of taxes in the city will be held on Friday, November 24th, commencing at 10 o'clock in the morning. The near proximity of this important event is creating an activity among delinquent ratepayers which will probably pass the long list of arrears to about $10,000 as a result before the date of the sale. A great many of these arrears are being settled and it is likely that the majority of the lots advertised in some of the prominent subdivisions will be redeemed at any rate before the 24th.

And not alone to the advertised arrears are city property owners taking notice. The payment of current taxes during October has been far and away the heaviest ever recorded in the assessor's office for a corresponding period. The principal reason for this rush of the past several days is the offer of a 10 per cent. discount on current taxes, which expires next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. For the months of September and October this year the collections had totalled $75,579.92 when the offices opened yesterday morning and that this amount will be increased materially by Tuesday is evidenced by the rate at which payments were made yesterday, over $12,000 being the receipts during the day. Of this morning's total $28,269.72 were paid in during September, principally in settlement of arrears prior to 1909. Of the $17,209.23 paid thus far in October the bulk is for current taxes and will therefore represent a heavy discount at the 10 per cent. offer. Against this record the collections of September last year were but $857.08, while October gave a total of but $13,257.41.

Only by working well into each night can the assessor and his staff keep abreast of the work attached to this influx of tax money and there is little promise of a cessation in the activity until the middle of next week.

Now Hear What We Have to Say and What We Predict About

RIVERVIEW

RIVERVIEW is the Groat Estate of the East part of this City. Look at it on the map and make the comparison for yourself. The lots are the same size, all big ones: 50 by 150 feet. There is the same beautiful view of the Saskatchewan. It is nearly all nicely treed with poplar of good size. It has Street Railway, Light, Water, Telephones, etc. Sewer Connection can be had from the big main in the spring. It is closer to the average business man's office than 21st street. Take your ruler and measure just how near it is. You'll be surprised.

Our prediction is that you will see (as you have already seen in the Groat Estate)

Hospital Building to Be Fine Structure

Plans Still Remain to Be Approved by Strathcona Council—Street Railway Superintendent Is Scored—Contract for Scavenging Work Is Let

Strathcona, Oct. 28.—Although the council in adjourned session last night did not, owing to the absence of several aldermen, pass judgment upon the plans for the new municipal hospital, the preliminary sketches were laid out by architect M. J. Strum, and the city fathers present had no hesitation in pronouncing the general floor scheme as excellent. That the new institution which is to be erected upon the university grounds is to be one of the finest hospitals in the entire province upon its completion next year is a fact well established by the plans. Architect Strum as one of the noted hospital building experts in the United States, and in the plans he has prepared for the Strathcona institution, none of the improvements, which go to make up an up to date home for the afflicted, have been neglected. The building will be full four stories in height above the basement and the cost is estimated by Mr. Strum to be in the vicinity of $100,000. This estimate includes heating but not the furnishing of the building. As an instance of the thoroughly modern scheme upon which the hospital will be carried to completion, it is proposed to have a heating system installed, which will draw warm air through the radiators of fans instead of the ordinary radiating system. Tenders for the excavation of the basement have been advertised for, and the award of the contract will probably be made in Tuesday night's council session.

Scored Paving Work. Alderman Vogel protested strenuously against the manner in which the street railway and the paving company have been permitted to dig up traffic for such a length of time at Fifth street east. He pointed out that a poor excuse for a crossing was being installed by the street railway across Fifth street. Alderman Richards supported the objection and added one of his own against the blocking of Whyte avenue and Fourth street east, by paving company's material. The objection to the street railway company's action was referred to the railway committee for immediate action and the building committee will be written regarding the blocking of streets.

Scavenging Contract Let. A report from the board of health recommends that Huth Murray be awarded the contract of winter scavenging in the city at his bid of $499 per month. Alderman Calder questioned that the work could be successfully done for this amount upon it being pointed out by the Mayor that the offer for the work ran from $140 up to $200 per month. It was decided, however, that the contract should be given Mr. Murray.

Power Plant Contract. For the special committee appointed at Tuesday night's meeting, Alderman Richards, reported that the J. Watson company, had been awarded the contract of rebuilding and altering the walls of the boiler room at the power house for the consideration of $4,007. The committee had thought this price was rather high but the architect considered it reasonable and in view of the urgent need for the work being done at once, it was thought advisable to award the contract. Council approved the action.

The application of the Strathcona rink association, that a rebate of 25 per cent be allowed upon the club's property, was granted after some discussion. This has been done in former years by previous councils. A similar application from the Strathcona club was referred to the finance committee.

Two petitions for plank walks were referred to the public works committee. The question of payment of a premium on the workmen's compensation insurance, taken out by the Manley construction company, caused some discussion. The premium amounted to over $700 and since the insurance was in effect no longer than September 30, it was thought advisable that the finance committee should look into the matter.

Once again a quorum did business although in all, seven aldermen were in the city. Those present were, Mayor Davies, Aldermen Richards, Tipton, Vanget and Calder.

CONTEST OF BEAUTY IN ETERNAL CITY

POSITION OF "QUEEN" WAS AWARDED GIRL WHO MAKES CIGARETTES

Rome, Oct. 28.—For the third time in history Rome has elected a "queen of beauty," chosen by popular vote from among the girls of the Eternal City.

It had been published in certain foreign papers that the classic type of Italian feminine beauty, those traits which inspired Raphael for his "Parnassus" and his "Beatrice Cenci," had disappeared from Rome and that the love of the Caesars could no longer claim to be the classic paragon of womanly loveliness. The election of this "queen" has caused among artists and art lovers in Italy and abroad was such a surprise that the Italian press, immediately decided to hold a beauty competition, exclusively for girls under twenty, born in Rome of Roman parents.

The difficulty of an election of this kind nearly overruled the organizing committee, owing to the large number of girls who entered for it as soon as the news spread to the various parts of the town. The committee was therefore obliged to resort to a double system of election. Each of the fourteen precincts into which Rome is divided was to choose its own "princess" and the people of Rome were to elect the "queen" out of the eight "princesses" by a general referendum to which every citizen was entitled to one vote.

Each "prince" or precinct appointed a selection committee formed of artists, editors and well-known persons from every quarter. They then were allowed to sit on such committees; but of course the women of Rome as well as the men were allowed to vote in the ultimate decision for the "queen of beauty."

Conspicuous was Koen. In certain "front" the competition between the girls became so keen that they threatened to end in serious disturbance. In every candidate was supported by a large group of admirers, who were prepared to shed their blood for her if need be. The "queen" of Trastevere and the "prince" of Monti, which is chiefly inhabited by the poorer classes, have been the scenes of real struggles and for a time there was danger that these two quarters of Rome would clash in one of those sectional quarrels which occurred frequently during the middle ages and still continue to provoke Spanish towns as a relic of ancient rivalry.

Finally the competition, which was witnessed by several hundred thousand people, terminated in the victory of Beatrice Cenci. Signora Cenci, whose name has now made more than one artist compare her with the celebrated "Parnassus," Raphael's famous heroine, is a girl of eighteen and is actually employed as a state cigarette maker in Rome. She is not only Roman by birth but all her ancestors of both sides have been descendants of a Roman family and have been living for over two centuries in one of those remarkable dwelling houses of Trastevere (the part of the town across the Tiber) where the most beautiful models of the Italian "mansueto" used to live, and where Raphael discovered his "Parnassus."

The beauty of Signora Cenci has the life of Rome which mixes up artists who used to spend a great part of their time at Trastevere in order to study their models in their original surroundings. It is a peculiar side of the article of Rome which mixes up artists and models in one family, with the result that it frequently terminates in love affairs and other love affairs.

Although Roman men of the lower classes are very jealous of their women and rarely admit foreigners into their circles, the story is told in connection with Signora Cenci that an English sculptor who had seen her in the past, was so struck by her classical features that he wrote several times asking her to sit for him, and promising her large sums of money. The young girl always refused to accept his offer, but the Englishman finding all his peaceful efforts were useless determined to have his beautiful model at any cost. For several nights he watched outside the factory where Signora Cenci worked, to make sure of the time of her departure, and one night he waited with a car and as soon as she appeared he approached her, promising to marry and to make her rich if she would consent to sit for him.

She would consent to sit for him, but she was so much afraid of him that she refused to do so. The Englishman, who ultimately confessed that she was worked up to a point near his of her desire for whom she would have despised any money and any number of admirers.

What a pity, the Englishman told her, "you should marry a king, for you are the queen of Roman beauty." Signora Cenci little thought at that moment that the saintly "Parnassus" was actually engaged to a young man of her district for whom she would have despised any money and any number of admirers.

When the news of the beauty competition reached the ears of Signora Cenci she was doubtful whether she should enter for it or not; either because she did not yet believe in her beauty, or because she was afraid of what her "Parnassus" would say, but the pressure brought to bear by her relatives and by friends in Trastevere persuaded her to become a candidate, without the knowledge of her fiancé, who was astonished a few days ago when he saw a photograph of his sweetheart published in the Roman papers, first as a princess, and then as the "queen of Roman beauty."

Signora Cenci is also a favorite in the contest. She belongs in the Monti district, and her supporters threatened to break out in revolt if the title of "queen" was not awarded to the princess, but they were forced to admit that no other princess could compare to the classical perfection of Signora Cenci, and they ultimately agreed that Trastevere was still holding the palm.

Signora Cenci, another candidate, according to the opinion expressed by several well-known artists, bears the mark of that distinction which has made the women of the Caesars famous. She is the representation of that type of Italian beauty which prevailed at the time of the Roman empire.

The "queen of Roman beauty" has been awarded $600 by the committee, but the amount of presents which have been sent to her by private persons far exceeds the value of the prize.

G. T. P. TOURIST CARS FOR CHRISTMAS EXCURSIONS

The Grand Trunk Pacific inaugurated a Tourist car service last year from Edmonton for the first time, and it was so successful that they are repeating the feature this year.

The cars, operated and owned by the company, are new and up-to-date in every respect, giving every comfort to the traveler.

As a special feature they are running one of their cars through to Portland, Maine, to connect with the White Star Dominion ss. "Pentagon" sailing from there December 14th, arriving at Liverpool December 21st. This car will leave here on December 18th and run through without transfer to the dock right alongside the boat at Portland.

From the present bookings of this party there is a possibility of finding it necessary to operate a second car sailing at an earlier date to connect with the White Star Dominion ss. "Canada" sailing from Portland December 2nd, or the "Meganic" sailing December 11th.

The route will be via Winnipeg, St. Paul, Chicago, Toronto, and Montreal. This will give the intending passenger an opportunity of seeing some of the largest American cities, and passing through the two largest Canadian cities.

Many Old Country visitors are taking advantage of the very low excursion rates in effect to Europe and American countries are being received in regard thereto. Anyone desiring to avail themselves of these special privileges should book without further delay.

TWO MORE BISHOPS ARE CONSECRATED

(Special to The Capital.)

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28.—The dual service of consecration of the Rev. Dr. Philip Mercer Himeleander and the Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Gorman, the first named as Bishop Gortlander and the last named as Suffragan Bishop of the diocese of Pennsylvania, took place here today, and was the most notable ceremony of the kind in the history of the Episcopal church in Philadelphia. It was 10 o'clock before the procession of bishops, clergy, hymn and chorists, who were to take part in the service, reached the Memorial church of the Advocate. Spectators filled the handsomely decorated church, which is one of the largest and costliest in the city.

The Rt. Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle of Miss

souri, the presiding bishop, occupied the cathedral throne. His assistants, Bishop Mackay-Smith, of Pennsylvania and Bishop Whitehead of Pittsburgh, occupied thrones on either hand. The Bishops-elect, clad in their robes, stood at the rear-screen, attended by their presbyters. The other leading participants in the ceremonies included Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts, Bishop Kinsman of Delaware, Bishop Thomas of Wyoming and Bishop Lloyd, president of the board of missions.

NA-DRU-CO Tasteless Cod Liver Oil Compound

There is no question as to the very high value of Cod Liver Oil, properly prepared and made digestible, as a "builder-up" for convalescents or those who are run-down.

Na-Drü-Co Tasteless Compound contains the valuable properties of the Cod Liver Oil without its disagreeable flavor. In fact, this preparation is decidedly pleasant to the taste. With Extract of Malt, Extract of Wild Cherry, and Hypophosphites of Lime, Soda, Potassium, Manganese and Iron added, it makes a combination that puts an edge on the appetite—aid digestion—invigorates the nerves—relieves and helps to cure affections of the throat and lungs and generally builds up strength and restores health.

For puny, delicate children there is probably no better "builder-up" than Na-Drü-Co Tasteless Cod Liver Oil Compound. 102

CALGARY BOWLERS HERE ON MONDAY

Will Bowl Against Team from Olympic League in Singles, Doubles and Five-Man Competition—Meeting of Those Interested in League to Be Held

Members of the Olympic Bowling League will play a pooled Calgarian team on Monday next at the Olympic alleys, challenges and counter challenges have been burning up the telephone wires for the last day or two and Manager Eddie Morris was able to announce yesterday that the match is now definitely settled. There will probably be two sessions, one at 11 a.m. and the other at 8 p.m., the afternoon being left open for everybody to go to the football match at Hamilton park, between the Eskimos and the Rough Riders. Singles, doubles and five-man competition will be played. The Calgary team will consist of Mitchell,

Skillful Bowling Needs Practice

Alley bowling, like any other sport, offers a complex study to the beginner. Many, in their first game hang up a pretty tidy score and then in future attempts wonder why the same success does not attend their efforts.

It is simple enough to see the reason, and the answer is found in practice, practice, practice. Doubtless there are scores of bowlers in Edmonton today who have scored 120 or better—a tall thing for the novice—on their maiden effort and who, in stray visits to the alley, have been unable to follow with striking distance of the same figure.

Why this should occur time and again is one of the mysteries of the sport. One might believe that bowling lacks the element of sequence and that it is purely a matter of luck. Whether a player makes a big score or not, but while luck certainly cuts a large figure in every game, it requires skill to hang up big counts. In the case of the "arson" player, who bowls like a veteran in his first game, it is as nothing else, for it takes weeks of constant practice to perfect a style that will permit him to pick up spares, as well as make strikes. It isn't a difficult matter to knock all the pins down with the first ball, but it is quite different when one faces a spare. Sometimes luck is predominant and helps out the bowler who is trying with his second ball to sweep off the alley the remaining pins. Very often the "back-luck" is nothing more than one pin sliding off the alley, and then back again and catching the piece of wood that seems determined to "kick." On other occasions a single pin will roll about the alley, its course will most likely take it to the other pin standing. If there is enough momentum with the pin that is rolling, the player usually chucks up a strike. If he does he considers that he has made a lucky "hit," and these are by no means uncommon.

Speed Versus "Stun."
Some say that bowling is purely a matter of luck, but there are many others from which it views such as a matter of speed. For instance, the bowler who depends more on speed and has the line pin fall on the ball, will encounter a split, then another bowler, who uses a medium fast ball and who occupies a split, almost an identical hit, lucky. The man with the "smoke" in making his celebration, does not consider that he has made a fact that it cut through the heart of the pins and left the corner ones standing, while the slower ball, sufficed with "stun" scattered the pins. While views are very different, it seems pretty unanimous among bowling fraternity that a medium fast ball with plenty of "stun" on it, which is equivalent of a sharp break of curve, is superior to speed and speed alone.

When Ball Reverses.
It takes a long time to master a good delivery, for even with old liners balls have a cantankerous habit of reversing at an inopportune moment. Many times a player has started for his "set" thinking he had a spare "balled to the line," only to see the ball curve this reverse way he had it feared and miss the pin or pins altogether. Seldom does one see two players with the same style of delivery, as nearly every bowler has characteristics of his own.

The writer will never forget the advice that he heard a veteran impart to a novice, and as it is so secret, it may prove of benefit to others. The veteran said, "Don't be discouraged if you fail to get big scores right off the reel. Skill only comes with practice, and when you have enough practice, your regular scores will naturally increase. While it is advisable to watch other bowlers, the same success does not attend their efforts. It is simple enough to see the reason, and the answer is found in practice, practice, practice. Doubtless there are scores of bowlers in Edmonton today who have scored 120 or better—a tall thing for the novice—on their maiden effort and who, in stray visits to the alley, have been unable to follow with striking distance of the same figure.

Why this should occur time and again is one of the mysteries of the sport. One might believe that bowling lacks the element of sequence and that it is purely a matter of luck. Whether a player makes a big score or not, but while luck certainly cuts a large figure in every game, it requires skill to hang up big counts. In the case of the "arson" player, who bowls like a veteran in his first game, it is as nothing else, for it takes weeks of constant practice to perfect a style that will permit him to pick up spares, as well as make strikes. It isn't a difficult matter to knock all the pins down with the first ball, but it is quite different when one faces a spare. Sometimes luck is predominant and helps out the bowler who is trying with his second ball to sweep off the alley the remaining pins. Very often the "back-luck" is nothing more than one pin sliding off the alley, and then back again and catching the piece of wood that seems determined to "kick." On other occasions a single pin will roll about the alley, its course will most likely take it to the other pin standing. If there is enough momentum with the pin that is rolling, the player usually chucks up a strike. If he does he considers that he has made a lucky "hit," and these are by no means uncommon.

Speed Versus "Stun."
Some say that bowling is purely a matter of luck, but there are many others from which it views such as a matter of speed. For instance, the bowler who depends more on speed and has the line pin fall on the ball, will encounter a split, then another bowler, who uses a medium fast ball and who occupies a split, almost an identical hit, lucky. The man with the "smoke" in making his celebration, does not consider that he has made a fact that it cut through the heart of the pins and left the corner ones standing, while the slower ball, sufficed with "stun" scattered the pins. While views are very different, it seems pretty unanimous among bowling fraternity that a medium fast ball with plenty of "stun" on it, which is equivalent of a sharp break of curve, is superior to speed and speed alone.

When Ball Reverses.
It takes a long time to master a good delivery, for even with old liners balls have a cantankerous habit of reversing at an inopportune moment. Many times a player has started for his "set" thinking he had a spare "balled to the line," only to see the ball curve this reverse way he had it feared and miss the pin or pins altogether. Seldom does one see two players with the same style of delivery, as nearly every bowler has characteristics of his own.

The writer will never forget the advice that he heard a veteran impart to a novice, and as it is so secret, it may prove of benefit to others. The veteran said, "Don't be discouraged if you fail to get big scores right off the reel. Skill only comes with practice, and when you have enough practice, your regular scores will naturally increase. While it is advisable to watch other bowlers, the same success does not attend their efforts. It is simple enough to see the reason, and the answer is found in practice, practice, practice. Doubtless there are scores of bowlers in Edmonton today who have scored 120 or better—a tall thing for the novice—on their maiden effort and who, in stray visits to the alley, have been unable to follow with striking distance of the same figure.

SASKATCHEWAN BOYS CALL OFF MEET

UNIVERSITY ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION RECEIVES TELEGRAM

The secretary of the Athletic association at the University received a wire and a letter yesterday from Saskatchewan to the effect that their athletic team would be unable to perform in Edmonton today as had been previously arranged. Several difficulties have presented themselves since Wednesday and hence the rash from the next province decided not to come here this week. Their rugby team seems to be rather a minor quibble and since the Alberta boys have shown an extreme willingness to play them the gridiron athletes from Saskatchewan have backed down. They have however quite willing to play association football, and next Saturday, November 4, has been selected as the date for the two teams to meet.

A track team may be sent up next spring but they refuse to send one along this fall.

DAVIS TO MANAGE CLEVELAND
Cleveland, Oct. 27.—Barry Davis, first baseman of the world's champion Philadelphia baseball team and lieutenant of Connie Mack, today signed a contract to manage the Cleveland team of the American League in 1945.

Personal Pars.
Andy McConnell played the game of his life during the Galt-White Sox series in Chicago.

Wintering in Chicago did not agree with Johnny Evers, and the star second baseman will return to his home in Troy, N.Y.

Manager Joe McGinnis thinks he has found a star in Tony Walsh, the first baseman turned over to Newark by the Chicago Cubs.

By deserting the Giants "Bugs" Raymond lost a lovely bunch or regular money. His salary and share of world's money would have been some funds.

Chicago and Pittsburgh were the only teams in the National League, and Detroit was the only team in the American League to play the full schedule of 141 games.

Nick Gush, of Savannah, Ga., has been elected president of the South Atlantic League, and Augusta and Charleston have been dropped from the organization, reducing the circuit to six clubs.

At a recent meeting of the Galt States League the salary limit was reduced to $12,250 for 12 players including the manager. A Lewis, of Jacksonville, was elected president of the organization.

Changes in the big league now being talked of are: Manager George Stovall, of Cleveland, to manage the Washington team; Charlie Wagner, of the Boston Red Sox, to manage the Cincinnati Reds; and George Melita, of Washington, to join the Boston Red Sox.

The officials of last year's Harvard-Yale football game selected for this year's game without discussion. The University of Pennsylvania team has a new quarterback in Barr, who looks strong enough to lead the team.

Michigan seldom runs up big scores against the little fellows, but as a rule plays a great game against the heavy boys.

The tallest man on the Carlisle Indians is Long Branch, a tackle who stands 6 feet 4 1/2 inches, and the shortest player is Jackson, a half-back who is only 5 feet 1 inch high.

Owing to the fact that practically the whole fleet will be off New York on November 25, the date of the Army-Navy game at Philadelphia, the demand for seats for the contest is greater than ever before.

Owen Moran and Jim Driscoll will meet at Birmingham, England, December 1.

The eugenics in Australia have begun a crusade to stop the boxing game that is so popular.

Al Wolcott is training at Fenwick Park, a few miles outside of Philadelphia, for his coming bout with Matt Wells.

FINAL WORK OUT.

The Eskimos and Y.M.C.A. teams will turn out for practice together this afternoon at 3 p.m. in preparation for Monday's big games at Diamond Park and Calgary respectively. However, no changes on injuries will be taken and it will be the "soft" points on the mixing stuff.

HOW'S THIS FOR A SCORE?
The high school football team of George A. Allen, Idaho, won a one-sided game from the Newport, Wash., eleven at Woodland Park recently by a score that sets a record in interscholastic football of this month. Twenty-two touchdowns and 13 successful attempts at goal netted the Lake City boys 124 points, while their opponents never had a chance to score. Not once during the game was the visiting team able to make their yardage.

INTERESTING GAMES IN BOYS' LEAGUE

ATHLETES BEAT CUBS AT BASKETBALL, BUT CUBS WIN RELAY RACE

Three schedule events in the School Boys League were played on Thursday. In the relay race the Cubs beat the Athletics three straight races in the basket ball the Athletics won out from the Cubs by a close score of 5 to 4 and the Tigers beat the Stars somewhat more easily by 9 to 3. The teams were as follows:

ATHLETICS (6) Cubs (4)
Simpson F. J. York
Lefthart F. J. York
Parney L. F. Pearce
Nelson F. J. Brown
Clegg L. J. Smith
Tigers (9) Stars (3)
Mond Melrose
H. Horner Hazehurst
Taylor L. F. D. Horner
Lees F. J. Margerison
Nelson F. J. Evans
Today the Athletics and Stars will meet on the bowling alleys and the Tigers and Cubs will fight it out at indoor baseball.

Yale's Work the Smoothest.
"Three forward passes were made in the last half at Cambridge completely fooled the Grimsen's defense and it was only because the fleet Wendell O'Brien that we did not score a touchdown. We would have scored a touchdown, but Wendell O'Brien's pass to Wholen relied upon the ground. To be sure, Felton came down on the play, but he was credited with breaking up the play."

"Taking the two games, I must say that Yale's work was the smoother and there were not so many plays made by the Blue men in which the team seemed disgruntled."

Rugby Union Rules Not Known

"There are hundreds of players engaged in football games, throughout Canada, and it would be a safe wager that not one of them knows the rules of this interesting juncture."

In a kick-off at center the ball must be kicked at least ten yards toward the opponents' goal. There are no more fake kicks at center and a punt behind interference.

A kick that is a drop kick from more than 25 yards from the kicker's goal line, and must move at least ten yards toward the opponents' goal line, is a drop kick. This latter is a new ruling that should prove very helpful to a defending team when playing against the wind.

A mark cannot be made from a bounding ball, but one can be made from a forward pass—that is something that few players are aware of. Should the ball strike an official, it is not regarded as dead, but play continues.

Should the ball be absolutely motionless on the ground and not in possession of a player, it is still in play. Even if a player is on side, he has no right to charge a player who has made "his mark," and if the latter is thrown to the ground the same penalty applies to the offender.

"Yards" Behind Goal Line.
Yards must be given behind it, a goal line and the same as in the open field. The penalty is the same.

The ball is not to be considered in play until it is in motion by a player of one of the scrimmages of the side in possession of the ball, that is to say, the ball can be played on the ground without being put in play. This gives the centre man a fraction of a second advantage in setting the ball out.

A try is to be scored when the ball is declared dead and any part of it is on, over or behind the opponents' goal line. How many arguments have you heard over this?

Should a player cross an opponent's goal line with the ball in his possession and touch the ground, it is touch down or across the goal line line, a try is to be allowed. If he goes into touch or across the goal line, it only counts one point.

In case of injury to players, substitutes are allowed during any period of the game. No player once removed can re-enter the game except with the consent of both coaches.

Should any coach or trainer or supporter go on the field without the referee's permission, a penalty of 10 yards will be imposed on the offending side.

CUP HAS BEEN ORDERED
President Lusk has ordered the cup which has been ordered for the last game of the Big Four League of All Stars, and it will be here by the time the last match is played. Mr. Lusk will leave the city tomorrow and will not be back until the tenth of November and consequently will not be able to act as referee on Monday for the last game.

The cup is a beauty. It is a large silver one and will certainly be won by the last match. Mr. Fletcher says that he will not be able to present the cup himself, as he will be in the city.

Married Life the Second Year

No. 85—They Leave the Beach and Return to Town on an Early Train

(By Mabel Herbert Orner.)
"Well, we'll never make that train of this rate." Warren glanced at his watch. "It's a quarter of eight now."
"Oh, if you had only let me pack this trunk last night, I was afraid I'd have turned this morning."
"You had plenty of time if you hadn't dawdled so."
Helen was down on her knees packing the steamer trunk with her lace gaiters, while Warren was packing impatiently up and down. He had already packed and wrapped his two suit cases with swift precision. But Helen was still struggling to get in all of her own and Winfred's things, and she was carefully before they left home, and even then the capacity of the trunk had been strained. But now that she was hurried it seemed impossible to get all the things in.

"Could you put my bedroom slippers and that waist in one of your suit cases. I don't believe I can get them in here!"
"I don't think that was coming," as he swung a suit case up on the table to strap it. "Here—give them here," he said, and she slipped them on him. He shoved the slippers among his brushes and the waist in with his shirt.

"And could you get in this powder box?"
"Wrap it up then. I won't have that stuff over everything."
"Now, that's all I've room for," as he closed and strapped the case.

Helen was cursing in the last few minutes with desperate disregard of how they would look when taken out.

"Now, if you'll help me," as she put down the lid, which looked awkwardly out of place.

"You can't get that down. Some of those things will have to come out."
"The Trunk is Closed!"

"But I've no place to put them. Oh, dear, we must get this closed. Wait, I'll sit on it. There, now try!"

After much struggling it was finally closed and locked.

"Now, come on down to breakfast. We're only about twenty minutes left."

"Oh, Warren, I won't have time for breakfast. I've all these little things to put in the handbag. You go on down—don't wait for me. I'll get something when I get home."

"You'd do nothing of the kind! You'll come down and have some breakfast now. There's no sense of your feeling around here all morning looking a few things."

As Helen swept the last article into the handbag, the porter appeared for the baggage.

"What's all that, sir?" as he dragged the steamer trunk and suit cases out into the hall.

"Yes, that's all. Now be sure to take them right down. That train goes at 8:15."

"Yes, sir, they'll be down there in ten minutes."

Helen was looking hurriedly about the room, in the wardrobe and through the bureau drawers.

"Come on, come on!" demanded Warren, already out in the hall.

"I just wanted to be sure we haven't left anything. Oh, wait, here's my rubbers on the closet shelf. Now, where will I put them?"

"Put them on," curiously, "that's the easiest way to carry them."

Minnie, the nurse girl, had already come down with Winfred and a small satchel, and was now waiting for them on the veranda. In the dining room the breakfast Warren had ordered was being served.

something else. I never saw such a woman. It's either too hot or too cold, or too much air or not enough. Now," drawing a newspaper from his pocket, "I'd like to have the rest of this trip in peace."

He laid her lip and turned to gaze out at the dining fields, blinking hard to keep back the tears. And she only asked him to raise the window!

She was conscious of the two old maids, who had taken a seat a little while before, and the aisle, where they were watching her closely. Warren's voice had been so loud that even through the closed door they had heard him.

And this time they heard him say, "I'll have the rest of this trip in peace."

NEW MONUMENT MARQUIS MONTCALEM

A great Frenchman's career is recalled by the unveiling in Quebec of a monument to Montcalm. The Quebec record is that of a duplicate of the noble bronze figure inscribed at Vaudreuil, Canada, France, a little over a hundred years ago. The idea of commemorating this illustrious character by twin monuments at the place of his birth and of his death, and of his death anniversary in France, and is a happy one. The monuments are erected to honor, and both in Old France and in Quebec there was the utmost enthusiasm at the unveiling ceremonies. Canadians of British descent share in those feelings of appreciation that are expressed by the mention of Montcalm's name and the recollection of his heroic death.

Montcalm was born in 1705, and he died in 1759. He was a Frenchman, and he was a hero. He was a Frenchman, and he was a hero. He was a Frenchman, and he was a hero.

BASEBALL SEASON TO END OCTOBER 1

NEXT YEAR'S MAJOR LEAGUE SCHEDULES TO BE ANNOUNCED FOR CHARLES FISH

New York, Oct. 26.—According to baseball club owners who have been here during the past week, the major league championship season in future will be extended to take in October 12—Columbus day. It is planned to frame next year's schedule, and they will end not later than October 1, which will give ample time for the world series to be played under favorable weather conditions.

If such schedules had prevailed this year there would have been a double The Giants and Athletics were compelled to kill time for nearly ten days before beginning the big series, which as a matter of fact, they could have started their games on October 7, the latest.

SO OF MILLIONAIRE BAXTER REGISTERED AS ATHLETE WHEN BUT 24 HOURS OLD

New York, Oct. 26.—The youngest registered athlete in the United States is Richard Baxter, son of Hugh H. Baxter, the ex-champion pugilist and millionaire.

Richard was born early this week, and his father's registration card was issued for him before he was 24 hours old. His proposer was Captain Matthew Halpin, of New York A. C., and his name was seconded by Secretary Robert Cameron of the same club. In his prime Hugh Baxter held the American championship and the world's record for a number of years in the old style of vaulting with shifting other hand he covered 11 feet 6 inches, which was regarded as a wonderful performance.

PRO. HOCKEY NOW BUSINESS BARTER

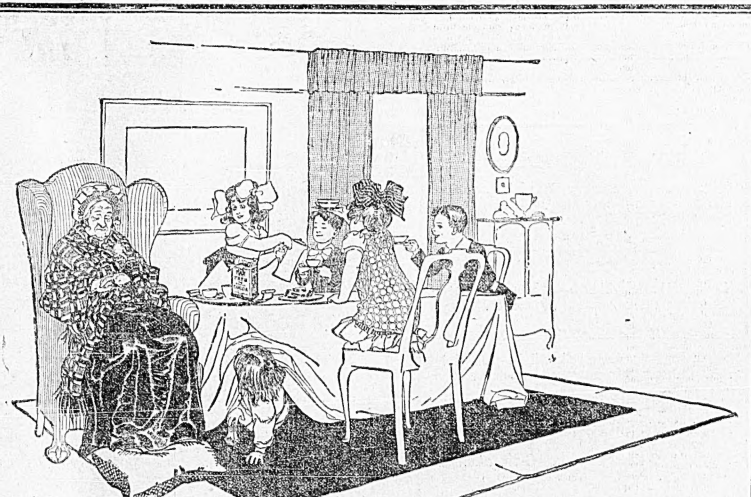

REDUCTION OF TEAMS TO SIX MEN ASIDE, MERELY TO REDUCE EXPENSES

Toronto, Oct. 26.—"Hockey is now on a purely business basis," says Jas. Gorman, the well known sports writer, "and I expect that the clubs will now see their way clear to conduct the sport upon a plane that will earn for the modern professional game of hockey the respect which the old style, that is to say, the seven-man team play, merited in the pioneer days of the sport."

Speaking in a manner that could not be mistaken, one of the oldest followers of hockey in Ottawa, a gentleman whose name is closely connected with the annals of the game for the past quarter-century, gave out an interesting statement today upon what he calls the building of hockey as Canada's national winter game.

According to our information, the reduction of the teams to six men is similar to the action of a big manufacturer in decreasing a working force. The interest, which has grown tremendously in the past few years, is now to be utilized in hockey yet another of Canada's commercial enterprises. It is but reasonable to surmise that the team will now be put under the strictest ruling, as it is only now another year or so to come into the fact that many kind professional hockey stars. One can easily see the coming of the day when the hockey player, at least the minor league, will be made and sold, in the same manner that the largest baseball clubs across the border handle their men.

been able to ascertain the number of the car responsible for the accident, nor the name of the driver.

street, a man named on the lower landing, an intoxicated man attracted considerable attention at a late hour last night. He was picked up by the police and lodged in a cell to await trial in court this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

FIRE ALARM

A fire alarm was turned in yesterday afternoon at 2:10 o'clock to extinguish fire in a case of rubbish at the corner of Saskatchewan and Jasper avenue. Close proximity of the fire to oil barrels made it dangerous to the surrounding buildings.

LACKED SIMOLEONS
AND WILL GO TO JAIL

Men charged with Assault and Breaking and Entering, and other charges, will be taken to jail tomorrow.

Proed Brundini, arrested before Magistrate's Court this morning, charged with assaulting William Leffey, and with breaking a window, value, $5, asked whether he was guilty or not guilty. Brundini stated he was not guilty that he did not know what happened. Leffey and his damage were in proof of the case. Asked on question whether Brundini could only iterate, "I was too drunk to know anything about it," when brought from the cell, that he must have been having a bad time. He was fined $10 and costs, or 21 days on the charge of breaking the window, and $25.00 or 30 days, on the charge of breaking the window, making a total of $50 or 51 days. Brundini did not having the coin chose the days.

CIVIC ELECTIONS
AFTER NEW YEAR

It may now be regarded as a certainty that there will be no municipal elections in Edmonton or Strathcona until the new year. To escape the troubles which would arise were elections to be held prior to the anniversary, during the second week in December, as required by the terms of the charters of the two cities, a short bill will be introduced at the opening of the legislature next month, authorizing postponement until the end of January.
This bill, which will consist of a single clause, will be introduced, he presented practically without discussion, and the date of the passage of the bill will, providing for amendment, will then be a matter of small moment.

In the absence of a resolution early in the session, it would be necessary for both Edmonton and Strathcona to hold their respective elections in December, and the councils so elected would automatically go out of existence one month after the close of the year, which is to omit the capital and the university city.
